

GCE A LEVEL MARKING SCHEME

SUMMER 2023

A LEVEL (NEW)
ENGLISH LITERATURE - COMPONENT 3
A720U30-1

INTRODUCTION

This marking scheme was used by WJEC for the 2023 examination. It was finalised after detailed discussion at examiners' conferences by all the examiners involved in the assessment. The conference was held shortly after the paper was taken so that reference could be made to the full range of candidates' responses, with photocopied scripts forming the basis of discussion. The aim of the conference was to ensure that the marking scheme was interpreted and applied in the same way by all examiners.

It is hoped that this information will be of assistance to centres but it is recognised at the same time that, without the benefit of participation in the examiners' conference, teachers may have different views on certain matters of detail or interpretation.

WJEC regrets that it cannot enter into any discussion or correspondence about this marking scheme.

GCE A LEVEL ENGLISH LITERATURE
COMPONENT 3: UNSEEN TEXTS
SUMMER 2023 MARK SCHEME

Online marking

WJEC will be using a method of marking examination scripts known as e marker ® for this paper. Under this system, candidates' scripts are scanned and then transmitted to examiners electronically via the internet. Examiners mark on-screen; marked responses and marks are then submitted electronically.

Whilst the basic principles remain unchanged, this method entails some important changes to the way the system operates when examiners mark on paper:

- Examiners do not mark complete scripts. Instead, scripts are divided into segments by question (item) and are transmitted to examiners in this form.
- Examiners are required to complete a standardising exercise, which is divided into two parts:
 1. The common marking of a number of responses selected and marked by the Principal Examiner and Team Leader
 2. Marking at regular intervals further responses selected and marked by the team. Should marks given to these items fall outside the tolerance agreed by senior examiners on more than one occasion, examiners will be prevented from further marking of that item until the senior examiner has been able to resolve the issue.

In terms of technical requirements, examiners participating will need a personal computer running on Windows XP, Vista or Version 7 and a broadband internet connection. With an Apple Mac a Windows emulator is required.

For further details, please see the user guide available on e-marker ® when you log on. Details of how to log on to the system and your username and password have been sent separately.

General Advice to Examiners

- Make sure that you are familiar with the assessment objectives (AOs) that are relevant to the questions that you are marking, and the respective weighting of each AO. The advice on weighting appears at the start of each Section and also in the Assessment Grids at the end.
- Familiarise yourself with the questions, and each part of the marking guidelines.
- The mark-scheme offers two sources of marking guidance and support for each Section:
 - 'Notes' on the material which may be offered in candidates' responses, with a brief overview.
 - Assessment Grid, offering band descriptors for each Assessment Objective, and weightings for each Assessment Objective.

- Be positive in your approach: look for details to reward in the candidate's response rather than faults to penalise.
- As you read the candidate's response, annotate using the on-screen comment bank as appropriate. Indicate points you reward and indicate inaccuracy or irrelevance where they appear. You are not required to include a summative comment at the end of the response, only enter the mark.
- You must tick at the end of the response to show all of the response has been seen.
- Decide which mark band best fits the performance of the candidate in response to the question set. Judge the candidate's performance in each answer as a whole: weakness in one area can be compensated for by strengths in another. You should also bear in mind the different ratios of Assessment Objective weighting when arriving at your 'best-fit' decision.
- Use your professional judgement, in the light of decisions made at the marking conference, to fine-tune the mark you give.

In this component, candidates are required to answer two questions, one from Section A and one from Section B. Section A is to be marked out of 50 marks and Section B is to be marked out of 30 marks. A total of 80 marks is the maximum possible for this unit.

It is important that we use a full range of marks. Full marks should not be reserved for perfection! Similarly, there is a need to use the marks at the lower end of the scale. No allowance can be given for incomplete answers other than what they actually achieve.

It is important to remember that final grading is the result of a series of aggregations, making it more difficult for a candidate to gain a particular grade unless due credit is given for positive achievement where it is shown in each element of the examination.

Marking

Consistency in marking is of the highest importance. What is sought in the examining process is evidence of your professional judgement, so it is essential that the mark you give is supported by comments within the answer. Ticks over a significant word or words are very helpful in highlighting what you regard as of merit. Many scripts will be reviewed at a later stage (samples extracted for standardising, borderline candidates, requests for reports or re-marks). In such cases an examiner's comments are an essential guide to reasons for the mark awarded. It is essential that all comments relate to the marking guidelines and can be justified to the centres and candidates. Some indication that each page has been read must be given.

Mark positively, always seeking to give credit for what is there rather than to penalise omissions. There are no fixed penalties for particular errors. Errors of spelling and grammar, for example, are covered by considerations of relevant assessment objectives.

Reference to Principal Examiner

If you wish to refer a response to the Principal Examiner for a second opinion, if, for example, poor handwriting makes fair assessment difficult, then follow the instructions for reporting a problem.

Prior to on-screen marking

Examiners are asked to go carefully through the examination paper and mark scheme prior to the actual marking process and to consider both questions on the paper. You are also required to mark about ten of each item in training mode. In this mode, you will be able to practise using the on-screen comment bank.

Further guidance on the training process is issued separately.

The final deadline for completion of marking is Monday 17 July.

The following guidelines contain an overview, notes, suggestions about possible approaches candidates may use in their response, and an assessment grid.

The mark scheme, however, should not be regarded as a checklist.

Candidates are free to choose any approach that can be supported by evidence, and they should be rewarded for all valid interpretations of the texts. Candidates can (and will most likely) discuss parts of the texts other than those mentioned in the mark scheme.

English Literature essays involve personal responses and arguments/discussions may be conducted in a wide variety of relevant and effective ways. Choices of material for discussion will vary from candidate to candidate and examiners must rely upon their professional judgement and subject expertise in deciding whether or not candidates' choices and approaches are effective and valid when they fall outside the boundaries of the examples noted below. Examiners are reminded that it is crucially important to be alert to the unexpected or highly individual but nevertheless valid approach.

In the rubric for this section, candidates are required to analyse the prose passages in depth. Candidates are informed that they will need to take account of relevant contexts and other readings. They must use the supporting extracts to enable them to do this but their responses might not be limited to these.

The following guidelines indicate where and how rewards can be earned and offer suggestions about the approaches candidates might take. When judging how much reward a candidate has earned under the different assessment objectives, examiners must consult the relevant assessment grid and look for a best fit which will then indicate a numerical mark.

Period 1880–1910

Q1	Analyse the following extract taken from the opening chapter of the satirical novel The Green Carnation, based upon Oscar Wilde and his social circle. The author, Robert Hichens, introduces the main character, Reggie Hastings. You must use the supporting extracts which follow the extract to help you consider contexts and different interpretations. [50]
AO1	Informed responses will demonstrate clear understanding of this story. We will reward creatively engaged responses for thoughtful and personal rather than mechanical/literal approaches. Understanding and application of concepts will be shown in the candidate's grasp of the conventions of narrative fiction as well as the candidate's grasp of ideas and attitudes arising in the story. Accuracy and coherence will be seen in the way knowledge is used as well as in the candidate's ability to organise material and choose an academic style and register. Credit will also be given for appropriate use of terminology. At the lower bands, responses will be mostly descriptive and narrative with understanding at a superficial level. Candidates will seek to engage with the narrative but comments might be general. There may be lapses in expression and a lack of organisation in the response. In Band 3, we should see increasing clarity as candidates write with more relevance, a stronger focus upon the details of the story and an increasing understanding of the concepts of narrative fiction. There will be fewer lapses in expression and at the top bands candidates will write accurate, sustained and fully coherent responses with some increasing degrees of creativity shown in Band 5 which, examiners must note, will find expression in various, individual ways.
AO2	Analyses of the ways meanings are shaped will be strengthened by economical and well-selected quotation and close reference. We will reward candidates' success in dealing with materials such as those below but these are only examples and other valid/ relevant materials could be used and deserve equal reward. In their responses to this question, candidates will gain credit for their ability to identify and analyse elements of the passage such as: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Tone – apparently neutral but with seeded hints at mockery and possibly contempt for Reggie's narcissism / unmanly behaviour (e.g. slightly absurd posing plus gazing "as a woman gazes at herself") intensified and made more overt by lists of Reggie's posing and self-admiration as the first paragraph develops. His personal philosophy of "fearless truthfulness" in acknowledging of his own beauty seem to make the author's satirical intentions clear which might become more trenchant/mordant as the subsequent paragraphs develop. • Techniques – omniscient narrator; character of Reggie presented through observation of behaviour and some use of free indirect discourse as Reggie's ideas and attitudes are developed. Other characters (Flynn, Mr Hastings senior, the ladies by Hyde Park and, more generally, the disapproving members of society) used as a commentary on Reggie developing his arrogance and self-absorption with hints at his immorality. Fine details of dress and surroundings: "silver backed brushes"; "Gloire de Dijon" roses; "Sevre" clock; "lavender gloves" used to develop ideas about Reggie's self-indulgent / precious nature. Ironic didacticism – author's comments directed at the reader appear to support Reggie's admiration of himself and his qualities while undermining both through repetition and hyperbole.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Form and Structure – the effectiveness of the passage as an introduction; the framing of the narrative i.e. moving from Reggie’s toilette in his rooms into his emergence into the wider landscape of fashionable London; the use of direct speech and other characters to mark transitions and carry forward the narrative. • Language – rich and sensuous – detailed evocation of sounds, light, colours and textures; evocative similes e.g. “like the murmur of a flowing tide” and almost hallucinatory metaphor “Dijon roses that dreamed in an ivory-white bowl”; • Attitudes – apparently neutral observation but increasingly apparent that Hichens regards Reggie as a foolish, narcissistic decadent whose arrogance and possible malignancy he makes more and more apparent. There is an obvious mixture of humorous mockery (e.g. “unyielding rampart of starched collar”; “he was too modern to be very reticent”) which, arguably, develops at times into contempt as we are shown Reggie’s treatment of his father and his haughty rejection of society’s “decent” values. Some might see Hichens as demonstrating an amused, benign tolerance of a foppish young man and a case could be made. Band 1 responses will probably offer basic, descriptive/narrative accounts of the story with some feature-spotting. In Band 2 we might see descriptive approaches to some features but by Band 3 there should be some increasingly clear and purposeful writing about the effects of language choices and the sequencing of the material and narrative technique. In Band 4 we should expect some confident, well-focused analysis of the language choices and techniques (see examples above) and the effect of this upon the reader’s impressions. In Band 5 there will be some confident and increasingly sophisticated analysis, perhaps taking in many of the points above, and developing confidently ideas about narrative technique and the creation of innuendo through tone and the more subtle means of creating layered characters while engaging the reader’s sympathy or antipathy.
AO3	In their approach to AO3, candidates must make use of the supporting extracts and may bring to bear upon their analyses other contextual knowledge and understanding which they have gained in the course of their study of the period Some key contextual points which could be rewarded if used relevantly in response to this extract might be: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • high society of the period • social rituals / rules • family • role of servants • attitudes toward difference, especially towards effeminate men • modernist ideas in philosophy, literature and art. Those in the lower bands might write generally about contexts with inadequate linking to the passage and indiscriminate quotation from given extracts. Writing might be descriptive, superficial and reductive with some misunderstanding. As we move into Band 3 there will be a better grasp of the connection between the text and relevant contexts with more sensible and discriminating use of the extracts and by Bands 4 and 5 there should be increasingly detailed and specific links with some exploration of ideas. In these higher bands, it is expected that consideration of context will be integrated into the literary analysis. In Band 5, we should expect to see subtle and illuminating connections between text and context and a confident use of given extracts.

	Work in these higher bands may be capable of moving relevantly beyond the given materials and referencing a range of relevant contexts, but examiners should note that subtlety and sophistication might also be seen in the ways in which some candidates make use of only what is given in the supporting extracts.
AO5	Candidates must approach AO5 by making use of the supporting extracts to address alternative readings and, in addition, they are free to make use of the knowledge and understanding they have gained in the course of teaching. As they consider the supporting extracts and other relevant alternative readings, candidates may approach AO5 in 3 ways: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • by debating alternative ideas and multiple readings (including relevant theory-based approaches) • by engaging with critical material including specific references to and quotations from other readers. • a combination of both of the above. In Band 1 no alternative reading might be offered. Some might rely upon offering an alternative reading using phrases such as “This could mean ...or it might mean...” without making much progress in this respect and/or descriptive use of extracts. Others might offer alternative readings which are not supported by the text. By the top of Band 2 and into Band 3, candidates’ language and technique is likely to be more speculative with some support from the passage and clearer use of the given extracts but probably lacking in telling detail. There should be confident writing in Band 4 with detailed and supported discussion of possible readings and sound use of the supporting extracts which, moving into Band 5, will become sophisticated and perceptive.

Q2	Analyse the following extract below taken from the novel, The Lost Girl by D.H. Lawrence, published in 1921, where the author casts an eye over the society of a small mining town in the Midlands. You must use the supporting extracts which follow the extract to help you consider contexts and different interpretations. [50]
AO1	Informed responses will demonstrate clear understanding of this extract. We will reward creatively engaged responses for thoughtful and personal rather than mechanical/literal approaches. Understanding and application of concepts will be shown in the candidate's grasp of the conventions of narrative fiction as well as the candidate's grasp of ideas and attitudes arising in the passage. Accuracy and coherence will be seen in the way knowledge is used as well as in the candidate's ability to organise material and choose an academic style and register. Overall, a hint of slightly amused disgust and distanced observation of contemporary mankind as fairly contemptible from top to bottom of the social strata – while tone varies slightly, misanthropy is always detectable. • Techniques – presented as a kind of polemical speech or essay with didactic intention and direct address of the reader which lays out the theories and themes which will underpin the story beginning after halfway with omniscient narrator's declaration, “Now James Houghton had only one child”. Use of metonymy “county”; characterisation through broad brush strokes of attributes or associations of various citizens and trades e.g. “grit” of stone-masons; “disinfectant” of doctors; “sawdust” of the timber-merchant and so on.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Form and Structure – Combination of sociological essay and conventional story-telling perhaps opening section is designed to add weight, verisimilitude and authority to the narrative which follows. • Language – varies from ornate, metaphorical writing “disembowelled coal” and “Dead Sea fruit of odd women” to journalistic speechifying “ “However it be, it is a tragedy....”. Use of slang and colloquialisms “nobs” and “old maids” adds colour and suggests a writer sharing common ground with the reader. Strong value judgements both implicit i.e. “so-called Manor” and more explicit in “fled” to describe polite society’s abandonment of the industrial districts and “full of facile ideas” to describe James Houghton. • Attitudes –expressed through tone and language choices – pervasive misanthropy / amused contempt at the conventions of society; the class system and the growth of industry. Band 1 responses will probably offer basic, descriptive/narrative accounts of the extract with some feature-spotting. AO3	In their approach to AO3, candidates must make use of the supporting extracts and may bring to bear upon their analyses other contextual knowledge and understanding which they have gained in the course of their study of the period. Some key contextual points which could be rewarded if used relevantly in response to this extract might be: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • class structure • trades and Industry • status of women • effects of WW 1 • marriage conventions Those in the lower bands might write generally about contexts with inadequate linking to the passage and indiscriminate use of the given extracts. AO5

Candidates must approach AO5 by making use of the supporting extracts to address alternative readings and, in addition, they are free to make use of the knowledge and understanding they have gained in the course of teaching.

As they consider the supporting extracts and other relevant alternative readings, candidates may approach AO5 in 3 ways:

- by debating alternative ideas and multiple readings (including relevant theory-based approaches)
- by engaging with critical material including specific references to and quotations from other readers.
- a combination of both of the above.

In Band 1, no alternative reading might be offered. Some might rely upon offering an alternative reading using phrases such as “This could mean ...or it might mean...” without making much progress in this respect. Others might offer alternative readings which are not supported by the text. By the top of Band 2 and into Band 3, candidates’ language and technique is likely to be more speculative with some support but lacking in telling detail. There should be confident writing in Band 4 with detailed and supported discussion of possible readings which, moving into Band 5, will become sophisticated and perceptive.

Section B: Unseen Poetry

In the rubric for this section, candidates are required to analyse the poem in depth. The following guidelines indicate where and how rewards can be earned and offer suggestions about the approaches candidates might take. When judging how much reward a candidate has earned under the different assessment objectives, examiners must consult the relevant assessment grid and look for a best fit which will then indicate a numerical mark.

'Absence' by Elizabeth Jennings

Q3	Analyse in detail the following poem.	[30]
AO1	Informed responses will demonstrate clear understanding of this poem. We will reward creatively engaged responses for thoughtful and personal rather than mechanical/literal approaches. Understanding and application of concepts will be shown in the candidate's grasp of the conventions of poetry as well as the ideas and attitudes arising in the poem. Accuracy and coherence will be seen in the way knowledge is used as well as in the candidate's ability to organise material and choose an appropriate academic style and register. Credit will also be given for appropriate use of terminology. At lower bands, responses will be mostly descriptive and narrative with understanding at a superficial level. Comments are likely to be general and unfocused, often revealing a misreading or misunderstanding of the details of the poem. There will most likely be lapses in expression and problems with organisation in the response. In Band 3 we should see a stronger focus on the poem and an increasing understanding and appreciation of poetic conventions and concepts in a response that is mostly accurate and coherent. At the top bands, candidates will write consistently accurate, sustained and coherent responses with clear evidence of sophistication and perceptive reading in Band 5. Examiners must be aware that candidates, particularly those in the higher bands, will find a variety of ways into the text as they produce individual responses.
AO2	Analyses of the ways meanings are shaped will be strengthened by economical and well-selected quotation and close reference. We will reward candidates' success in dealing with materials such as those below, but these are examples only and other valid/relevant materials could be drawn upon and will earn equal reward. In their responses to this poem candidates will be rewarded for their ability to identify and analyse elements of the poem such as: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • significance of title • monologue with a tone of melancholic reminiscence • "last" suggests the end of whatever relationship existed • patterns in first stanza "Nothing was changed"; "usual steady jet"; "no sign"; "nothing to instruct" suggesting a continuing normality / ordinariness with life apparently going on unremarkably "gardens were well-tended" • mood / state of mind more clearly established in Stanza 2 with "ecstasy I could not share"; "thoughtless birds" presents some ambiguity i.e. inconsiderate or without the power to experience sad thoughts in contrast to human speaker • language begins to indicate power of feelings "pain to bear" and "discord shake" • language intensifies in final stanza as feelings become fully realised – "savage force"; "earthquake tremor"; "shaken by my thinking" • analyses may note use of personification, metaphor, regular rhyme and metre and the ways in which these contribute to tone and meaning.

	Band 1 responses will probably offer basic, descriptive/narrative accounts of the poem with some feature-spotting. In Band 2 we might see descriptive approaches to some elements but by Band 3 there should be some increasingly purposeful writing about the effects of language choices, structure, imagery and the sequencing of the material. In Band 4 we should expect some secure, well-focused analysis of the language and in Band 5 there will be an even more confident and increasingly sophisticated analysis, perhaps taking in many of the points above, and developing confidently an understanding and appreciation of the ways in which subtleties of mood and attitude emerge in Elizabeth Jennings' poem.

Examiners must be aware that candidates, particularly those in the higher bands, will find a variety of ways into the text as they produce individual responses.
AO2	Analyses of the ways in which meanings are shaped will be strengthened by economical and well-selected quotation and close reference. We will reward candidates’ success in dealing with materials such as those below, but these are examples only and other valid/relevant materials could be drawn upon and will earn equal reward. In their responses to this poem candidates will be rewarded for their ability to identify and analyse elements of the poem such as: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • significance of title which takes the subject-matter beyond a straightforward account of war • sense of horror embedded in an otherwise cool introduction with the use of metaphor “nightmare ground” and ambiguous “soldier sprawling” which shocks in retrospect because this is a corpse not a resting soldier • memories and flavour of battle continue with personification “frowning barrel” and simile “like the entry of a demon” • “he hit my tank” establishes a new dimension in the relationship between speaker and subject • “dishonoured” taken out of its usual context includes implicit comment on ugliness and brutality of war • Use of diminutive “Steffi” lends pathos augmented by “copybook gothic script” which emphasis the care the soldier’s lover has taken • reader recognises the futility of the idea of forget-me-not as the awareness of the soldier’s death and decay grow more apparent • musings follow on the fragility of human beings in contrast to the machines they have made – that which serves them survives them is seen as a conundrum • penultimate stanza focuses horror and sentiment with unblinking observation of detail

- preparing for the final stanza's complex mingling of ideas as the duality of lover/killer is observed along with the death of the soldier being also a "mortal hurt" to his lover
- analyses may comment on variation in rhyme patterns and metre and the ways in which these contribute to tone and meaning.

Band 1 responses will probably offer basic, descriptive/narrative accounts of the poem with some feature-spotting. In Band 2 we might see descriptive approaches to some features but there will be some attempt to address subtext. By Band 3 there should be some increasingly purposeful writing about the effects of language choices, structure, imagery, sound qualities and the sequencing of the material. In Band 4 we should expect to see the start of some secure, well-focused analysis and in Band 5 there will be an even more confident and increasingly sophisticated analysis, perhaps taking in many of the points above, and developing confidently an understanding and appreciation of the ways in which subtleties of feeling and attitude emerge in Keith Douglas' poem.
