General Marking Guidance

- All candidates must receive the same treatment. Examiners must mark the first candidate in exactly the same way as they mark the last.
- Mark schemes should be applied positively. Candidates must be rewarded for what they have shown they can do rather than penalised for omissions.
- Examiners should mark according to the mark scheme not according to their perception of where the grade boundaries may lie.
- There is no ceiling on achievement. All marks on the mark scheme should be used appropriately.
- All the marks on the mark scheme are designed to be awarded. Examiners should always award full marks if deserved, i.e. if the answer matches the mark scheme. Examiners should also be prepared to award zero marks if the candidate's response is not worthy of credit according to the mark scheme.
- Where some judgement is required, mark schemes will provide the principles by which marks will be awarded and exemplification may be limited.
- When examiners are in doubt regarding the application of the mark scheme to a candidate's response, the team leader must be consulted.
- Crossed out work should be marked UNLESS the candidate has replaced it with an alternative response

Section A: Reading

Question Number	AO1 Read and understand a variety of texts, selecting and interpreting information, ideas and perspectives.	Mark
1	Accept any of the following, up to a maximum of two marks: • 'Switzerland-sized' (1) • 'Himalayan nation/in the heart of the Himalayas' (1) • 'sandwiched between (the great Asian giants of) India and China' (1) • 'standing at 8,000 feet' (1) • 'on top of the world' (1)	(2)
	• 'kingdom' (1)	(2)

Question Number	AO1 Read and understand a variety of texts, selecting and interpreting information, ideas and perspectives.	Mark
2	Accept any reasonable description of what the writer does, in own words, up to a maximum of four marks, for example: • explores old towns • walks through rice fields and/or forests • visits different buildings such as ornate temples and dzongs (fortresses) • looks at animals (yaks) in the fields • buys prayer beads • tries new activities such as (the national sport of) archery • watches boys throwing darts • makes the difficult climb up to the Tiger's Nest

east but her sense of the difference is reinforced by her mirrored and contradictory response that 'Thimphu will never look like New York to me'

- the list of colour adjectives describing Tashichho Dzong: 'whitewashed, red-roofed, golden-tipped' gives a sense of vibrancy
- the writer has a positive view of the Bhutanese people, describing them as 'very handsome' with 'beautiful... faces' and 'gentle smiles' and she struggles to find a word that can convey all of their good qualities
- their national dress is described in some detail using the Bhutanese names of 'kira' and 'gho'
- the last two paragraphs move from describing what the writer sees to recounting what she learns about Bhutanese history which she shares with the reader; she seems fascinated by the names given to the country and its districts in the past
- the fact that 'only a handful of Westerners found their way into Bhutan' seems to explain how it has retained such a strong identity
- in the final paragraph there is an amusing account of how, in the 19th century, an Englishman, Andrew Eden, made a 'disastrous visit' to try to prevent the Bhutanese raiding British territory and was unceremoniously treated by them
- the extract ends on a positive note with the writer expressing her 'admiration for this small country that has managed to look after itself so well.'

5	Reward responses that compare the writers' experiences and the ways in which they present their ideas and perspectives.
	Examiners should refer to the following bullet points and then to the table on page 8 to come to an overall judgement.
	Responses may include:
	both writers describe a first-time visit to Bhutan and give their initial impressions of the countryboth texts describe only a short amount of time: Text One refers to 'my nine-day trip' and Text Two to 'a week-long orientation session' at the start of both texts there is description of the landscape of Bhutan but this is more developed and extensive in Text Two both writers use measurements to emphasise the high altitude of the country: Text One states it is 'standing at 8,000ft' and Text Two says it is 'about half' of '4,500 metres' there is a positive tone to each passage but the writer of Text One sounds more effusive with mention of it being a 'privilege' to visit and later feeling 'blessed' and 'being treated like royalty' both writers emphasise the differences between Bhutan and the western world: Text One states 'Western "essentials" only recently arrived' and Text Two says that 'signs of cultural infiltration are few' both writers comment on the good qualities of the Bhutanese people and Text Two also provides a physical description both writers state that they see few other foreigners in Bhutan both writers mention that Jesuit priests were the first western visitors to Bhutan in 1627
	 both writers use a mix of informative and descriptive language the writer of Text One is visiting Bhutan as a tourist/travel writer and so wants to see all that she can, but the writer of Text Two has gone there to work as a teacher and needs to learn about the place where she will be living
	the writer of Text One stays in luxurious hotel accommodation but the writer of Text Two stays in a basis hotel writer of Text Two stays in a basic hotel there is a great difference in the quality of the food that the writers are offered: Text One refers to 'smoked salmon and tender Australian rib-eye steak' and Text Two to 'plasticky white bread and flavorless jam' the writer of Text One hints that there may be some things that the Bhutanese do not want visitors to see or do as 'independent travel is forbidden'
	the writer of Text One visits places other than Thimphu and describes the range of tourist activities that the synapsis and the synapsis the range of tourist activities that she experiences the writer of Text One describes the smells of the countryside and the weather using poetic language: 'the sun melts the silvery coating of frost'
	the writer of Text One is a lone traveller but the writer of Text Two has companions in Thimphu whom she describes the writer of Text One interacts with her Bhutanese guide, Ugyen Tenzing, and includes some of his direct speech but the writer of Text
	Two has little direct contact with Bhutanese people

- the writer of Text Two gives more detailed information about the history of the country
- only the writer of Text One talks about the high cost of staying in Bhutan as a tourist
- both texts are informative but Text One is also quite persuasive as it is by a newspaper travel writer, presenting Bhutan as a holiday destination for 'respectful, wealthy tourists'.

Level	Mark	AO3 Explore links and connections between writers' ideas and perspectives, as well as how these are conveyed
	0	No rewardable material.
Level 1	1-4	 The response does not compare the texts. Description of writers' ideas and perspectives, including theme, language and/or structure. The use of references is limited.
Level 2	5–8	 The response considers obvious comparisons between the texts. Comment on writers' ideas and perspectives, including theme, language and/or structure. The selection of references is valid, but not developed. NB: candidates who have considered only ONE text may only achieve a mark up to the top of Level 2
Level 3	9-13	 The response considers a range of comparisons between the texts. Explanation of writers' ideas and perspectives, including theme, language and/or structure. The selection of references is appropriate and relevant to the points being made.
Level 4	14–18	 The response considers a wide range of comparisons between the texts. Exploration of writers' ideas and perspectives, including how theme, language and/or structure are used across the texts. References are balanced across both texts and fully support the points being made.
Level 5	19–22	 The response considers a varied and comprehensive range of comparisons between the texts. Analysis of writers' ideas and perspectives, including how theme, language and/or structure are used across the texts. References are balanced across both texts; they are discriminating and fully support the points being made.

SECTION B: Transactional Writing

Purpose: to write a speech - informative, discursive, persuasive. Audience: the writer's peers. The focus is on communicating ideas about whether modern life is so busy that we do not have time to value the things that really matter or not. A range of approaches could be employed to engage and influence the audience.
Form: the response should be set out effectively as a speech with a clear introduction, development of points and a conclusion.
 Responses may: agree with the statement, explaining what makes modern life so busy and suggesting what things could, or should, be more greatly valued disagree with the statement and give reasons refer to personal experiences or those of people whom the writer knows.
The best-fit approach An answer may not always satisfy every one of the assessment criteria for a particular level in order to receive a mark within that level range, since on individual criteria the answer may meet the descriptor for a higher or lower mark range. The best-fit approach should be used to determine the mark which corresponds most closely to the overall quality of the response.
