Costa Coffee

Costa Coffee is a British multinational coffee shop company owned by Coca-Cola. It is the second largest coffeehouse chain in the world behind Starbucks, and the largest in the UK. Costa Coffee takes ethics very seriously and it has switched to environmentally-friendly coffee beans to make its supply chain more sustainable. Now all its stores worldwide use beans from Rainforest Alliance-certified suppliers, who meet ethical and environmental standards for the sustainable supply of coffee beans.

Marks and Spencer plc

Marks and Spencer (M&S) is one of the UK’s leading retailers. It is committed to making every moment special for its customers, through its high quality, own-brand food, clothing & home products.

M&S has an ethical programme called ‘Plan A’. This was relaunched in 2017 with three new objectives for 2025:

1. ‘Nourishing our wellbeing’ – including looking after staff and their needs.
2. ‘Transforming local communities’ – including supporting staff who want to volunteer in charities.
3. ‘Caring for the planet we share’ – including developing better recycling for packaging.

In 2017, 60% of M&S’s revenue came from the sale of food, which it sells through its 1025 UK stores as well as through e-commerce on its website.

The majority of the food it sells comes from one of its 283 ‘food factories’ located around the country. The Montana Bakery is one of these factories. It produces speciality breads, rolls, garlic breads and pizza bases for retailers and sandwich makers. The bakery has grown and has moved to a larger factory, where it is considering switching from batch production to flow production and automating some of the production.
