Extract BCanada's Top Exports in 2014

In 2014, global Canadian exports amounted to Canadian $594.3bn, up 22.8% since 2010.

Most of Canada's exports have increased between 2010 and 2014. Cereals had the highest increase in export sales of 57.3%, followed by timber at 49.4% and oil at 39.9%. Only the export sales of electronic equipment, with a fall of 6.8%, and aluminium at 0.6% declined over the period.

Canada's unemployment rate fell from 7.1% in 2013 to 6.6% in 2014. It is likely that this improvement was helped by increased exports.

MPs pass legislation to introduce standardised cigarette packaging

MPs have voted in favour of introducing standardised cigarette packaging from May 2016. The packaging of all cigarettes sold in England will have to be uniform in size, shape and design, with only the brand name and graphic health-warning images permitted on the front.

The result of the vote makes England the third country to introduce such a law. Ireland introduced similar legislation in 2015 and Australia did the same in 2012. Although the vote only applies to England, other parts of the UK have said they will introduce similar legislation.

Harpal Kumar, the chief executive of Cancer Research UK, called the vote historic, saying it marked "a strong and clear commitment to the health of future generations".

Imperial Tobacco has said it would sue the UK government to protect its intellectual property rights. The Australian government is defending its introduction of plain packaging in a case before the World Trade Organisation. The original proposal to introduce such legislation was dropped from the Queen's speech in 2013 when the government was thought to have been lobbied intensively by the tobacco industry.

A health minister said plain packaging was a "proportionate and justified response" because of the health risks associated with smoking. Smoking-related diseases remain the main cause of preventable deaths in the UK, killing more than 100,000 people a year. 20.5% of adults smoked in 2013 compared to 46% in 1974.

Every playground in the borough is set to be smoke free

Islington Council is planning to make playgrounds smoke free, banning smoking in all 147 park playground areas. It follows a successful trial in three sites last year in which 94% of 200 park users interviewed were in favour of the scheme.

Councillor Claudia Webbe of Islington Council said: "Our trial of trying to reduce the social costs of smoking has had incredible support from our residents. The majority of people agree that playgrounds should be smoke free. Making smoking less visible is an important part of stopping children taking up smoking, and protecting them from the effects of secondary smoke. We are planning to extend the smoke free scheme to all play areas in Islington and ask adults to avoid smoking in our parks."

One Pro cycling team attracts supermarket sponsor

The British domestic cycle racing scene has received a much needed boost. Tesco's own clothing brand, F&F, have started a three-year sponsorship deal with the new One Pro cycling team.

Tesco is sponsoring the team as it is seeking to develop its own range of sports clothing, which will include cycling wear.

5

The One Pro cycling team will prominently feature F&F branding on their jerseys and shorts throughout the season. Tesco will also provide gym, casual and formal wear for the One Pro team from its range of F&F clothing.

"We've been looking for about nine months now for an opportunity in sports," said Richard Collins, CEO at Tesco's F&F. "Cycling was right at the top of the list given the growth in public participation and the increasing interest in the sport."
