Answer all questions.

QUESTION 1

Study the sources below and then answer the question which follows.

Source A

[A photograph showing events in Londonderry, Northern Ireland, April 1971]

Source B

The British economy is sinking. The rate of inflation is rising rapidly. The tax rates are so high that anyone who has any wealth left is taking the chance to get it out of the country. The price can only be still lower economic growth and lower living standards for all the British, rich or poor. Goodbye Great Britain, it was nice knowing you.

[The editorial comment from the Wall St Journal newspaper, 29 April, 1975]

What can be learnt from Sources A and B about the main political and economic problems faced by Britain in the 1970s? [4]

Study the source below and then answer the question which follows.

The Television Act of 1954 introduced independent television, producing lively and popular programmes, although there has been a reliance on American westerns and crime series. In many ways independent television has been successful, with more people watching its programmes than those of the BBC. It is clear that television has undoubtedly had the biggest impact on society in recent years.

To what extent does this source accurately reflect the impact of TV during the 1950s and early 1960s?

[8]

[In your answer you should refer to the strengths and limitations of the source and use your own knowledge and understanding of the historical context.]
